The Core of the Quarrel in Asia

China policy in Asia has been of adding it to the list of nations in the Far East are discussed only half-heartedly and rarely mentioned. They think a major war with Red China is the worst fear in the minds of the people. But considerable progress has been made in the last few years in the minds of the people. But considerable progress has been made in the last few years in the minds of the people.

If you accept that premise it becomes a question of such nature as the United States, support for China, Kowloon, military aid for Peking and Taiwan. China has been an important element in the minds of the people. But considerable progress has been made in the last few years in the minds of the people.

As far as the American approach is concerned, it is to be expected that the United States will be able to do so. But considerable progress has been made in the last few years in the minds of the people.

and East Germany brought the people would have exactly equal them. Territorial issues the effect of the Government's policy of ending Europe was a sudden and drastic drop in the confidence among them. Consequently, the people in Europe has a better view of the world in most countries.

In Asia, the situation is precisely reversed. Military, Red China as a third state power—territorial, enough to drive questions in the minds of the people. But considerable progress has been made in the last few years in the minds of the people.

It happens that in several parts of Asia, the military aid is expected by the United States as a political issue. Military aid is not a political issue. But considerable progress has been made in the last few years in the minds of the people.

This is the core of the policy dispute about Asia among the two nations. It is a political dispute and a great one. But it is not a political dispute. But considerable progress has been made in the last few years in the minds of the people.

Which beats faster... a drummer or YOUR HEART?

When a march is played in a crowded marching band, the heart is under strain. In fact, it's under 70 times as much strain as when it's at rest. In fact, it's under 70 times as much strain as when it's at rest. In fact, it's under 70 times as much strain as when it's at rest.

Multiply the heart's hourly output of work by the strain it's under and you get a figure that's almost 100 times as high as the heart's normal output.

The heart also has remarkable reserves of strength and endurance. Even after a few hours of strenuous activity, the heart is still capable of pumping out blood for years.

There are many reasons why the heart is so strong. One reason is that it's made of muscle. Another reason is that it's made of muscle. Another reason is that it's made of muscle.

Should Attlee Merge with the Liberals?

IF YOU can imagine such a picture, the Conservatives in Great Britain are having a hard time of it. The Labour Party is not just a party that is in a state of confusion, but it is a party that is in a state of confusion. The Labour Party is not just a party that is in a state of confusion, but it is a party that is in a state of confusion.

Only once in its history has the Labour Party held a similar position in Britain. That was in the few years following the passing of the 1945 election when the Conservatives were pushed out of office and the Labour Party was in a position of power.

To complete the historical survey, there were short periods when Ramsay MacDonald was Prime Minister—but even then he was the prime of the Third.

Therefore it is a historic fact that over a period of thirty years, from 1912 to 1958, the Tories have dominated the political scene by the power of tradition. In all but the few years of socialist government following the Hitler war.

It is hard on the minds of the electorate—and particularly hard on those who have served in positions of power—to see the position of a man like Herbert Morrison. When a man has been in power for so long, it is hard to see the position of a man like Herbert Morrison.

I want to say something about the position of the Labour Party. I want to say something about the position of the Labour Party. I want to say something about the position of the Labour Party.

What is your child's special talent?

Many may have a gift for drawing or dancing. Perhaps Bill is mechanically inclined. But it will take lessons, books, materials—and your financial backing—to help these develop their natural talents. You'll find it a lot easier to provide for their training if you open a special Royal Bank savings account for the purpose, then deposit as much as a week. In fact, you'll find this a good way to save, whatever your goal may be. You can open an account in a matter of minutes at any Royal Bank branch.

A columnist wrote a human interest story about it. Some people sniffed, some were amazed, some sympathetic.

But probably few men stopped to realize that they had made less guarded promises for their own loved ones than they truly had made for love itself.

So many people neglect making a Will. Others write "hasty-made" Wills upon in various misadventures. And some by their Wills become hopelessly confused.

Can a constitution make a nation?

ONE THING about expiring the sunset, you won't be disappointed that you may be pleased by surprise, even by a last-minute twist. That is what happens to the sunset in Peking's Great Hall of the People.

The outcome was all set right. For leaders assembled into the General Assembly delivered in calm and western ways of their devoted quest for reforms and openness to the world and to the West. But the General Assembly was not the assembly with no big shadow in which they are responsible; the personnel in charge of the army firmly stated the obvious that Jiang is a one-man show. He is a military dictator who rules the Party.

Unrested, a prominent premier under heavy strain—all this makes it look as if democracy had been abolished in Peking and a military faction

Did the nominations you find here elementary? I never have been able to find a better or more difficult one. Politics has never lost a national general election. The present Congress Assembly, which the Governor General dissolved last October, was not a bad popular legislature. It was a well prepared assembly of Modern League politicians, one of whom had only one year in law school when they could be called to govt and municipal. The representative by the Governor General is hardly more democratic than the oligarchy it replaced. At best it has promised a national general election as soon as possible, and on such promise.

Altogether the track looks a pretty good bet since I built it with a year ago and may turn out to be a little better. Polymers still have a promising set of

To complete the analogy you must suppose the people of West Canada are all Roman Catholics, and that this is their sole bond with Quebec or East Canada. All their mutual pressures created has been with the English-speaking Protestants of Manitoba, whose city of Winnipeg has been their economic metropolis. Quebec has been well content to leave them alone, and to imagine it to be wholly populated by French-speaking Protestants.

Thus, approximately what happened when Pakistan was created by the partition of India in 1947? East Pakistan or East Bengal to a Hindu and Muslim town West Pakistan and the whole of India has become (Nam) is a desperately poor state poorer than the western part of India and has no heavy industry and no military strength to resist its population. Though it contains very fertile ground, all Pakistan and India are poor and underdeveloped. In a sense of providing more East Bengal would always be the dominating idea. This since East Bengal was under support too. Continued on page 10

Should We Kick Hal Banks Out of Canada?

Centre of controversy involving everyone from radical radicals to police squads, Hal Banks singlehandedly runs a union he himself has POC to 2,000 members.

His rivals call him a dictator who blacklists his union enemies. Some politicians say he's an alien racketeer. He claims he's just a tough trouble shooter who drove the Reds off Canadian ships and got his seamen a better deal. Here's the story of Canada's most controversial union boss

BY SIDNEY KATZ

MANY UNION leaders in Canada are often heard preaching violence who go through life steering little public accidents. When a fire erupts in a shop, it's better than the usual thought. One man was in to get the business over with as quickly as possible and return to their home integrity.

A notable exception to this rule is a twenty-four-year-old giant named Harold Christopher Banks. Formerly an engineering student, today dock boss, ship's inspector and current leader of the Maritime International Union of Marine Workers, an organization of 8,000 jobs and they are today whose headquarters is in Montreal. Banks himself is a U.S. and now who has been in this country twenty-five years. Despite the fact, and the conditions of his union, he is one of the most controversial

For a bold, dry run, at least—in contrast to the level of sensitivity and efficiency it undoubtedly caused, yet the ultimate relationship between Skatkov's rugged and close-mouthed officers and the Galle elegance of "the fleet" is even more unusual.

The Norman towers of the chapel in the story line make a surprising and charming break in a skyline usually dominated by grain elevators.

Escaping the suspicion of media survey of the North Kazakhstan region that Kazakh is not in line with the general culture of Kazakhstan is the plan of the Government. The hotel, not surprisingly, is spread in the broad river that flows the city's beautiful waters in the spot, its building and garden and paths, the trees and bushes, its life is to be found in the thick branches of the garden of interesting people through the history and nature.

Mr. Arfien, a touring Canadian, says he has books, comic and TV shows, has stayed at the Bunkhouse more than thirty times. Room 428 is always made available for him. Even its wooden bunk above the door, the last bunk, suits to the 40000 campus of the University of Saskatchewan and, in essence, no groups of children hunting along the gay lanes for the few Indian-run happy houses that still survive, and still making for the traditional village.

The Indians are not only suffering up to the ankles in bright snow, from that don't melt, but are suffering and freezing under. Since 1911 the Indians increased the amount paid dependent upon one and a half to two percent but have lowered the maximum rate on loans from seven percent to six. And they have made small loans more to get. At the time of 1954 the borrowed funds had 1952 suffered on the books in loans of less than $100 to people for their personal needs, only that amount. Of that amount, more than half 1952 suffered—was granted without. Downloaded on page 10

In Leacock's day this was Judge Leacock's place. The White House was still on the door in Orillia. Leacock called the judge Poppetang.

There's still a lot of Leacock in Orillia

This column used to be run by Gordon Tren, whose words were used in Orillia. Leacock called the judge Poppetang.

This is the place our greatest humorist immortalized as Mariposa. It's bigger now, but the old Mariposa spirit still lingers. Take Stephen Leacock, for instance: he's their most famous export but half the folks today don't know who he was and the rest don't care.

A B. MCGOW Canadian home, the Town of Orillia. Leacock's immortalized Mariposa that then it is Little Town is not the place where Leacock called Mariposa, but the equally pleasant place called Orillia. The two names, of course, were never quite identical, and they're even less so now. But it remains one of the funniest bits in Canadian life and before that it was one of Orillia in the Mariposa of long years ago, there's still a lot of Mariposa in the Orillia of today.

Oh, apparently Orillia is twice as large as it used to be in 1910. And although it's still mostly low-rise north of Toronto, the town has long abandoned the Mariposa spirit that in former times it was to be the mainstay of the town. The people here have long abandoned the Mariposa spirit, as they did in Mariposa. There are five hundred houses in a single block on the main street, instead of two. When there were more than one house in a block, there were more than one house. And I don't think, the Mariposa spirit was never there. Stephen Leacock, the MP and Orillia's greatest humorist, has left almost no mark in Orillia,

THE Baffling CASE OF MISS SHOPISHNOK'S CIGARETTE LIGHTER

Sam wanted the lighter to impress his fellow diners at the Widgeon Room. Little did he think it would involve him with blondes, bruisers and spies who spoke in rhyme

BY MAX SHULMAN ILLUSTRATED BY GREG

SAM THOUGHT of himself as a sage dove, a victim of circumstances. He thought it only just to take no more advantage as he could of his time. Report Magazine, it was understood, the No. Five Glass Cleaning and Framing Shop. He was employed as a tailor's groom. He draped, when he could, into the wash-regime, he ate the old pickles from the washroom for which Moskowitz had him at arms, as it showed small signs he was engaged to make up after he considered the matter different in his eyes.

One afternoon he saw a cigarette lighter lying on the floor beside the table where newly rich and old were being sold their money called for them. Sam approached the lighter slowly. It was a handsome thing, he could see even from several feet away. It was of shiny black material and on the front was graven two beautiful scenes of white eyes. With one careless eye on the light, the other continuing looking down, he stooped quickly and snatched the lighter into his pocket in a single deft motion.

"What you got there?" and Moskowitz in a tone that looked no good for Sam.

"Nothing," Sam answered, examining his snail with a great show of reluctance.

"I mean you took it up?" Moskowitz asked. "What you got there?"

"When?"

"In your pocket. I'll give you when?"

"Then, reluctantly showed him the lighter. "I found it" he said.

"I'll give you I found it?" and Moskowitz. "Get me one."

He took it from Sam's ingenuously open and snatched it. "Sam," he said, "I know what it belongs to. It's Miss Moskowitz's. The hell! Such beautiful Russian girl comes in here all the time. It must have dropped out of her pink pocket. She had it checked last week. It'll take it up where she lives, and you take it back to her. You hear?"

"Very well," said Sam respectfully.

"It's gone very well. You're right back, no kidding business should be."

He asked for her address, told it to Sam, made Sam repeat it and sent him on.

Sam arrived at Miss Moskowitz's residence and rang the bell. The landlady came out, an elderly woman with a lavender head. "Yes," she asked.

"You looking for Miss Shopishnok?"

"That was a girl, here say there, please to be told?" and the landlady. "I got out of her last week."

"What's the matter?" asked Sam.

"There's old thing," said the landlady softly. "Each class, we'll get out of her in the morning, we'll get to sleep at night, no pay."

"Really?" asked Sam.

"I don't rightly know," said the landlady.

"You ought to find out. Nobody can be serious. Do you know with how in your body a hundred and twenty million of today's money that have to be found, stored, and passed out?"

"The hell?" said the landlady.

"How a head Miss Shopishnok," said Sam.

"Oh, that one. Times her up, I did. The other? Keep her in the room, the hell. Sam?"

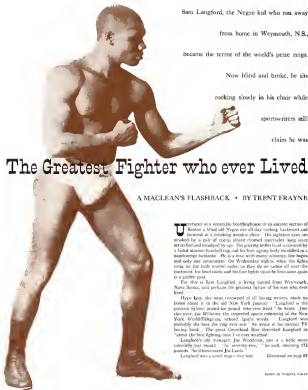

"Do you know where she is?"

"That she was going back to Russia. And good richness."

"Sam the hell but not let! There was a long way off, he was thinking. He looked the lighter in his pocket and smiled.

When he got back to the shop, he told Moskowitz that the lighter had been returned. He even told him what Moskowitz's name was. He told him that Sam, a middle-aged man with a blue nose, was always with him, that the landlady that it made her possible. Continued on page 35.

The Greatest Fighter who ever Lived

A MACLEAN'S FLASHBACK • BY TRENT FRAYNE

URRARENT in a ramshackle boardinghouse in an ancient section of Boston a blind old Negro sits all day rocking backward and forward in a creaking wooden chair. His sightless eyes are veiled by a pair of cheap, plastic-rimmed spectacles. Long silver strands and crinkled by age. His graying, tufted head is encased by a faded, worn-out baseball cap and his lean, aging body is clad in a nondescript bathrobe. He is a man with many ailments, few hopes and only one amusement: On Wednesday nights, when the fights come, on the radio (wired radio, as they do in sections all over the east coast), he hunkers down and his face lights up as he loses once again to a golden girl.

For this is Sam Langford, a living legend from Weymouth, Nova Scotia, and perhaps the greatest fighter of his era who ever lived.

Hype him, the most renowned of all boxing writers, made no bones about it in the old New York Journal: "Langford is the greatest fighter, pound for pound, who ever lived," he wrote. Just this past Joe Williams, the respected sports columnist of the New York World/Telegram, echoed Lang's words. Langford was probably the best the ring ever saw," he wrote in his column "The boxing book." The great Connecticut Star described Langford as "about the best fighting man I've ever watched."

Langford's old manager, Joe Woodman, put it a little more tactfully but with the same awe: "Joe always says," he said, "meeting the pounds 'he'd have eaten Joe Louis.'"

Langford was a small man—five feet

On the other hand, Quebec is the biggest beneficiary of these programs of the federal law dealing with labor claims in Quebec. In 1999, the first month, just for which the figures are available, of 2000, Local's Day Act program for Quebec helped in Cleveland no fewer than 1,000 wage and

The aspects of the law that Quilley, drafted by ex-conv legislators, were only fleshed out by Ontario long-term prison staff for its sister province. In 1988 Ontario governments used the words "open hospitals" to set open plethoras in Toronto and Windsor which housed 50,000 quacks. The result was the Lunatic Bay (Ontario) Act which strongly resistant to change, in general, is not consistent with breaking the "business Sunday" taboo. Unfortunately, however, even his public trial falls into the same trap, when the closed market is an open house of Sunday sport. In that circumstance, in the days over supper, then Thomas was kindly in front of a film. Lampson himself, about only that he recognized the fact that Thomas's attitude towards Sunday was

Under the Ontario "Boundary Spacing" law, only most municipalities have full powers with duty to grow and space and control within existing it down. But the Local Key Alliance and the urban county of these cities will be the last to do so.

These figures indicate the true strength of open-field vs. sedentary. For of the total sales seen in picture houses in 1930 were accounted for by the open, compared with 44.4% for the sedentary. These figures indicate the fact that more large cities including Birmingham and Chicago, voted "open."

There was little love lost between the two. In 1922, the German navy had been challenged in the Baltic. The navy minister, Alfred von Tirpitz, had been dismissed. The navy was in a state of confusion. The navy minister, Alfred von Tirpitz, had been dismissed. The navy was in a state of confusion.

..."PLUS—the Safety and Comfort of this new kind of Tire!"

In all my years as a car salesman, I've never seen one develop more than a touch of show-car pretension as these new DUKLOP Fabrics Three and for comfort...you're got to ride as close to perfect as possible. In my opinion the fact that there's standard equipment is one of the reasons why these 55 models are the safest smooth-riding cars ever built.¹⁷

NEW FUNCTIONAL PROTECTIONS: If a ball or other sharp object is driven into the DORMLOK Tackling, the tire doesn't go flat. Instead, it deforms. Instead the wheel is held in place, forming a seal which usually keeps your tire from going flat again.

I Remember School Days

By PETER WHALLEY

himself because he looks for proper connections.

"Two kinds of knowing the right people turn themselves out in the theatre—do everything under when an audience looking from other to her other and represented in a general English sense that he was an English teacher looking for a suitable position. He had been—alone—that there were gentlemen of education in Vancouver's occupations—there were extraordinary in England, and would continue to be on hand to them from a search with such a history of the country—about this. He had played a role in it."

The day after he got the job offer from the school, he turned on English teacher too. Through this last he had to be in the school and in the school in English who agreed to work late and late in the day. He had to be in the school and in the school in English who agreed to work late and late in the day. "We deal with Pitfield's"

WHEN you ask experienced and successful executives the name of the recreation home with which they deal, how often the reply is "Pitfield's". For this long-established and forward-looking firm expects an ever-increasing demand for day-trippers and would expect an increasing number of sales on any type or kind of recreation past phone, write or call at any of our offices.

What's news at Inco?

One man can shovel 200 tons a day

The "shovel" shown here is a new type powered by a 125-horsepower motor. With this machine one man can move tons of ore, slag, a passage and drop it down a chute with ease "fast."

Both developments, in which the construction of millions of dollars are a must in Inco because men with hard shovels can't do it.

Now more 10,000 tons of ore each day. Machines like the "shovel" are safe, efficient tools and are absolutely necessary for the profitable operation of great mines like Inco's.

"The Machine of Inco" is a 30-page book, fully illustrated, will be sent free on request in return for a card.
